

Roots drink moonlit rain
beneath tree branches
we learn the language
of earth
and answer with care
this is my home not
I love
the future blooms
here.

I WANT MY COUNTRY BACK!

said the man on TV

and I agree! so let

trees be planted please

and green grass grow

and flowers bloom

in flourishing gardens

here and everywhere

possible! yes yes yes!

as signs of hope and

A garden grows on
I sing to my plants.

I whisper, "You're doing great."

"Keep going." "Keep growing."

"I love you."

A garden grows on love...
And for the garden of our world to grow, maybe just maybe we should sing with one another.

Tell each other, "You're doing great."

"Keep going." "Keep growing."

"I love you!"

Water. With a green shimmer, beautiful, but

I cannot see the bottom.

Trapped on this bed I

call home, my life preserver

I cling onto it helplessly as to avoid being swallowed up entirely. The vines are slimy. They wrap their tendrils around your ankle and call to you. Beg for you to stay.

In a way, I would like to,

but I cannot breathe down there.
